Enhancing your organisation's reputation, profitability and resilience

Understanding how others identify and exploit vulnerabilities in organisations

UK businesses lose billions of pounds each year because:

The emerging global threat picture has not been fully understood

They have not adapted to meet new challenges arising from changing work behaviours and expectations, technologies or environmental challenges

Reviews of incidents caused by terrorism, criminality, commercial espionage, cyber-attacks, protest and other damaging activities reveal they could have been prevented or identified earlier, have been less damaging and resolved quicker.

A lack of 'modern day security governance' at senior executive and board level has also been identified as a critical factor.

Your opportunity to understand and stay ahead of the threat

CPNI has designed a one-hour facilitated on-site session to help senior executives appreciate today's emerging risks and threats and to:

- REFLECT upon existing practices across a range of corporate functions
- CONSIDER if business processes reflect staff, supply chain and customer behaviours
- APPRECIATE how others exploit and manipulate corporate structures and policies to cause loss and harm to organisations and individuals within them
- UNDERSTAND if they have the best governance in place for the security threats of today and if they are adequately protecting their people, assets, information, reputation and profitability.

The session is based upon real events that have affected UK businesses and comprises video inputs and facilitated discussions.

All discussions are completely confidential.
